In the written/digital evaluation procedure a standardized evaluation form is used. In addition, sounding board groups and student panels are active in which verbal evaluation data is collected about individual courses and curriculum components.

Section 2 Organization of the Program

Article 2.1 Study load

1. The study load of the program is 60 ECTS credits.
2. The study load is expressed in whole ECTS credits.

Article 2.2 Indication of specialization on diploma and transcript of grades

To be able to claim the specialization track on the diploma and the transcript of grades, students must meet the following conditions:

For the Master's program in Communication and Information Sciences

In the specialization tracks Business Communications and Digital Media, Communication-Design, New Media Design and Cognitive Science and Artificial Intelligence:

Students must obtain at least 4 courses bearing the label of the relevant specialization track (see PART 2) DEEL 2)

Please note (1): the specialization track New Media Design has compulsory courses and a limited number of elective courses. Courses bearing only the label of this specialization track are not accessible to students of other specialization tracks.

Please note (2): Students who wish to obtain a specialization in Cognitive Science and Artificial Intelligence (CSAI) are recommended to take the courses, including a CSAI thesis, which are referred to in PART 2 of the curriculum components of the Master's degree in Communication and Information Sciences for the recommended curriculum Cognitive Science and Artificial Intelligence (CSAI).

In the specialization track Data Science: Business and Governance:

Students must pass all components belonging to the curriculum of the specialization track (see PART 2). This specialization track has a fixed program, in contrast to the other specialization tracks of the Bachelor's program in Communication and Information Sciences.

For the Master's program in Culture Studies

In the Majors Online Culture (Art, Media and Society, Global Communication and Ritual in Society), Children's and Young Adult literature and Management of Cultural Diversity:

Students must obtain all components belonging to the curriculum of the specialization track (see PART 2).

For the Master's program in Philosophy

In the specialization tracks Ethics of Business and Organizations, Philosophy of Democracy and Culture, Philosophy, Science and Society, Philosophy of Contemporary Challenges, and Philosophy of Humanity and Culture:

Students must obtain all components belonging to the curriculum of the specialization track (see PART 2).

Article 2.3 Composition of the programs

For all Master's programs:

The Master's programs and the specializations distinguished in each of these consist of the components and the corresponding study loads as specified in PART 2. Component details are specified in the OSIRIS Catalog.

Each year, it is decided which courses will be offered and assessed in Dutch, in English, or in another language. Students are to take the course in the language in which it is offered and assessed in the year in question.

In tandem with these courses, the School of Humanities and Digital Sciences offers a digital Dutch and English language proficiency test for all Master's programs. This Dutch/English language service is for all students who have enrolled in a particular program for the first time.

The requirements that are set for the thesis and the way in which supervision and assessment take place are laid down in the thesis regulations of the study program concerned.

Participation in the educational components may be subject to conditions relating to

- a. previously obtained courses: if there are specific entry requirements for the participation in a course, they will be mentioned via OSIRIS Catalog;
- b. attendance for classes:
 - practicals: for practicals compulsory attendance applies;
 - seminars: if there are specific entry requirements for the participation in a course, they will be announced via OSIRIS Catalog;
 - lectures: in principle lectures are not compulsory. However, there may be educational reasons (like work forms that require active participation*) for the lecturer to demand mandatory attendance during lectures. In these cases, compulsory attendance may be required at the lectures or parts thereof. The lecturer announces the compulsory attendance of the lecture or parts thereof before the start of the course via OSIRIS Catalog.

 Examples of such work forms are the use of voting boxes/digital voting systems, quizzes, giving presentations during the lecture, etcetera.*

For the Master's program in Communication and Information Sciences:
In drawing up the schedules of the Communication and Information Science Master's programs, care is taken to avoid scheduling courses with the same labels or courses that are linked in terms of content at the same time. However, considering the large number of courses offered in each block or semester, the time slots of certain courses will inevitably overlap with others. In these cases, students will have to make a choice between these overlapping courses.

If students have been admitted to the English-taught curriculum of the Communication and Information Sciences Master's program (Free program or specialization) and are required—on top of that – to take the Statistics (3 ECTS credits) module as an extra course, they must have completed this module before they can start on their Master's thesis.

There is no required order of courses in any of the other Master's specialization programs.

The Master's program in Communication and Information Sciences offers scope for following one elective course (6 ECTS credits). An elective course may be completed with no more than one Master's course offered by a degree program accredited by the Dutch Ministry of Education, Culture and Science. For any other choice, prior permission must be obtained from the Examination Board. No prior permission is given for more than one elective course. The chosen elective course must be related to the final attainment levels of the program. The School is not responsible for actually being able to follow the chosen elective course at another School or institution. It is up to the student to check whether he/she can be admitted. If more courses have been taken elsewhere—after successful completion—a request can be submitted to the Examination Board to list those courses as 'extra courses' on the transcript of grades.

The specialization Data Science Business and Governance in the Master's Program in Communication and Information Sciences: this specialization track has a fixed program, in contrast to the other specialization tracks of the Bachelor's program in Communication and Information Sciences.

For the Master's Program in Philosophy:

One of the components of the Philosophy Master's program is the Scriptietraject (Master's Thesis Track) module.

For the Master's Program in Culture Studies:

In the Majors of Management of Cultural Diversity in the Culture Studies Master's program, room is reserved for an elective part. If students wish to follow this elective part at a foreign university, for instance by realizing their Master's thesis project there, the university in question must meet the NUFFIC quality criteria. In addition, the elective component in question must support to the program's field. The elective course should be related to the Master's thesis. To incorporate the elective part into their program, students need the approval of the Examination Board.

Article 2.4 Practicals

In addition to lectures and seminars, the following courses of the Master's programs as referred to in Article 2.2 and specified in PART 2, also include classes in the form of practicals.

For the Master's program in Communication and Information Sciences:

3. Students with disabilities can be given the opportunity by the Examination Board to take examinations in a way that is adapted as much as possible to their individual limitations. If necessary, the Examination Board will seek expert advice before taking a decision.
If taking exams in an adapted form should require certain specific facilities to be made available or require that the exam be administered in a particular way, the students in question are to file a request to this effect at the Digital Registration Desk for Disabilities (Digitaal Meldpunt Functiebeperking).

Article 3.3 Oral Exams

1. In oral exams, not more than one person is assessed at the same time, unless the Examination Board has decided otherwise.

FOR YOUR INFORMATION: Graduating in two specializations within Master's programs

On the basis of jurisprudence of the Examination Board, regulations have been drawn up for students opting for a Master's degree in two specializations within the Communication and Information Sciences Master's program, the Culture Studies Master's program or the Philosophy Master's program.

N.B.: Graduating in the specialization Data Science: Business and Governance (DSBG) within the Master's program in Communication and Information Sciences does not, under any circumstances, lead to a degree in the Master's program Data Science and Society.

Graduating in two specializations within the Communication and Information Sciences Master's program

[1] Graduating in two of the specializations Business Communication and Digital media (BDM), Communication Design (CD), Data Journalism (DJ), Human Aspects of Information Technology (HAIT), Cognitive Science and Artificial Intelligence (CSAI)

- a. Students are to complete all components/courses of the Master's program plus an extra Master's thesis plus four extra courses to the value of 24 ECTS-credits, a condition being that for each specialization at least four courses have the label of that specialization. This may include courses that have more than one label. The total study load is $60 + 18 + 24 = 102$ ECTS-credits.
- b. All components of one of both specializations will be specified on the list of grades belonging to the certificate. The extra components will be specified on the list of extra components.
It is up to the student to choose which of the specializations will be specified on the list of grades belonging to the certificate and which of the specializations will be specified on the list of extra components.
- c. The 'judicium' is computed on the basis of the components specified on the list of grades belonging to the certificate; components specified on the list of extra components are ignored.

[2] Graduating in Data Science: Business and Governance (DSBG) or New Media Design (NMD) and in one of the specializations Business Communication and Digital media (BDM), Communication Design (CD), Data Journalism (DJ), Human Aspects of Information Technology (HAIT), Cognitive Science and Artificial Intelligence (CSAI)

- a. Students are to complete all components/courses of the specialization DSBG or NMD plus an extra Master's thesis plus four extra courses to the value of 24 ECTS-credits, conditions being that the four extra courses have the label of the specialization BDM, CD, DJ, HAIT or CSAI, and that DSBG or NMD courses which also have the label of the second specialization (or more than one label) can only be included once. The total study load is $60 + 18 + 24 = 102$ ECTS-credits.
- b. All components of one of both specializations will be specified on the list of grades belonging to the certificate. The extra components will be specified on the list of extra components.

It is up to the student to choose which of the specializations will be specified on the list of grades belonging to the certificate and which of the specializations will be specified on the list of extra components.

- c. The 'judicium' is computed on the basis of the components specified on the list of grades belonging to the certificate; components specified on the list of extra components are ignored.

Graduating in two specializations within the Philosophy Master's program

- a. Students are obliged to complete all required components (courses ad 24 ECTS-credits and thesis ad 12 ECTS-credits), all components belonging to one specialization (24 ECTS-credits) plus all components belonging to the other specialization (24 ECTS-credits) plus an extra 6 ECTS-credits for the Master's thesis. In total, the study load is $60 + 24 + 6 = 90$ ECTS-credits.

- b. All components of one of both specializations will be specified on the list of grades belonging to the certificate. The extra components (incl. the extra 6 ECTS-credits for the Master's thesis) will be specified on the list of extra components.

It is up to the student to choose which of the specializations will be specified on the list of grades belonging to the certificate and which of the specializations will be specified on the list of extra components.

- c. The 'judicium' is computed on the basis of the components specified on the list of grades belonging to the certificate; components specified on the list of extra components are ignored.
